East meets West at Raffles 2013 Graduate Fashion Collections

Young, up-and-coming fashion talent shows the best of Byzantium

Inspired creativity and edgy design will collide with a dazzling array of ‘New Byzantium’ themes at this year’s annual Raffles College of Design and Commerce Graduate Fashion Collections, held at Carriageworks (245 Wilson Street Eveleigh), 6pm on Tuesday, 10 December 2013.

The professional runway show is an extravagant undertaking and recognised by the industry as one of the most important dates on the Sydney fashion calendar. Previewing collections from some of the hottest young local and international design talent, the showcased styles are the culmination of three years’ work by Raffles’ graduates.

“The quality of talent at this year’s show is outstanding,” says Nick Comino, Program Director of Fashion Design and Fashion Marketing at Raffles. “Some of the pieces display a truly mind-blowing standard of tailoring and design. This really is a must-attend event for the fashion industry and media.”

Past Raffles’ Graduate Fashion Collections have attracted some approximately 500 guests including designers, industry, media and bloggers. High profile attendees have included Akira Isogawa, Nicola Finetti and Samantha Harris.

The runway presentation will be held in conjunction with the highly acclaimed Graduate Showcase, which exhibits and celebrates the outstanding design work produced by students across the fields of Graphic Design, Interior Design, Digital Media and Photography.

Raffles College of Design and Commerce is a unique education provider based in North Sydney, specialising in design, visual communication and business. The college is part of Raffles Education Corporation, with a network of over 34 colleges across the Asia-Pacific region.
