476 Raffles Graduates, Unveiled!

Singapore, 19 December 2012 – Prominent designers, key industry figures, foreign emissaries and numerous distinguished guests gathered at the Fairmont Singapore to witness the ‘Unveiling’ of the graduating cohort last Thursday, December 13, 2012. The much anticipated Graduation Exhibition and Showcase 2012 of Raffles College of Higher Education wrapped up with much fanfare and compliments from guests who attended the symbolic event.

“I am superbly impressed by the high standards of the students’ work, creativity as well as practicality and it was so fascinating to be able to see all these designs! I would like to congratulate all the Raffles graduates and I am looking forward to the day where these graduates could come to Japan and build the interaction between Singapore and Japan designers, as well as lead the fashion and design industry in the future.” said Mr Toshihide Ando, Director of the Japan Creative Centre, Deputy Chief of Mission and Minister-Counsellor for The Embassy of Japan.

Observing the graduation ceremony, visitors were enthralled by the outstanding and innovative works from a total of 476 promising young leaders, many of them award-winning designers and business graduates with remarkable portfolios.

Celebrating her achievements with her family at the ceremony was high-flying Raffles Business graduate, Joyce, who spoke with heartfelt sincerity, “I learnt a lot more than marketing here; I learnt how to interact with people, how to overcome challenges, and manage my time and projects. I have also built a strong network of business contacts to help me in my career when I enter the working world”.

Amongst the graduating cohort, many of them had won awards in big-scale competitions and participated in major collaborations with noteworthy brands. One such graduate was Raffles Jewellery Designer, Michelle Doho, who was second runner-up in the Singapore Jewellery Design Award 2012, an annual prestigious event, which attracted more than a thousand entries from the Asian region. Besides Michelle, two other outstanding Raffles Fashion Designers, Virginia Liu and Aurelia Evelyn Santoso were selected to represent Raffles College of Higher Education in the esteemed Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week Australia 2013, to be held in Sydney next April.

At the exhibition, Professor Maureen Wayman, a recipient of the Order of the British Empire (OBE) for her services to local and higher education, was visibly impressed with the high standards of the graduates. “It is a very interesting cohort of students. The collection of ideas that they have presented were very valid and some of them were quite innovative in addressing the design problems. It was really encouraging to see their works in the exhibition.”

Months of hard work finally paid off for graduating Raffles Fashion Designers as they showcased their distinctive and spectacular collections to guests at the evening’s fashion show. Adhering to Raffles’ constant striving for innovation, audience members were able to view on their tablets or smartphones the intricate workmanship of every piece of fashion garment during the fashion show.

Towards the end of the fashion show, Madam Raffaella Orsini, Secretary General of the Italian Chamber of Commerce in Singapore was generous with praises from what she saw. “I honestly think the work Raffles College of Higher Education is churning out is amazing! I personally know Joe Spinelli and I think he is doing a wonderful job in raising students who can create such creative and unique pieces of work.”

Without a doubt, the fashion show obviously left an impression on Mr Daniel Boey, the most sought after fashion and lifestyle event producer and fashion creative director in Asia.

“There were a couple of students whom I think have so much potential and I had the privilege of seeing the collections close up before the fashion show. The amount of workmanship, the knowledge of the silhouettes, the cuts and all, they were quite exemplary and I am very excited for these designers to make their debut in the fashion world.”

While at the backstage and bursting with emotions, Raffles Fashion Designer, Patricia, shared her moment. “It’s been a tough journey and I really learnt a lot! I found myself here – who I am, my passion, learning all the different skills, defining myself – the experience was amazing!”

Raffles College of Higher Education is proud to unveil our graduates to the real world, fully equipped with knowledge and skills to pursue their dreams, and would like to congratulate each and every one of them.
